City attorney updates status on Victoria Inn

By TALI HUNT

City Attorney Joe Jenner told the Madison City Council Tuesday night what he has been researching to help solve some of the issues raised two weeks ago by neighbors of the Victoria Inn at 801 E. Main St.

The complaints from residents in the area included finding drug syringes on their doorsteps and on their lawns, squatters sleeping in their yards and garages, death threats and panic throughout the neighborhood when a resident of the inn was severely stabbed in his room May 3 and law enforcement searched the neighborhood to find the assailant.

Jenner said he had been looking for solutions that other Indiana municipalities have developed to solve similar problems.

As an example, he said he found an ordinance in place in South Bend — called the Chronic Problem Property Ordinance — which allows the city to fine the resident of the property for certain types of emergency and criminal calls.

The law was written to fine the owner of the property, but because of a state law change in 2017, the fine falls to the appropriate resident inside a building similar to the Victoria Inn, not the property owner.

Jenner said he also has started looking into an Indiana Code that deals with nuisances that allows for municipalities to file civil suits against problem properties.

Mayor Damon Welch told the council and the Victoria Inn neighbors who attended Tuesday's regular session that the city intended to follow through with the processes it has begun to try to address their concerns.

This includes allowing the property owner and management its full alotted time to address the violations cited in a building inspection. The deadline to address the issues is the end of the day Thursday, May 24, 2019. Owner Mark E. Nay had until the Board of Public Works meeting Monday, May 20, to request an appeal of the findings of Building Inspector Mark Johnson's report, which Nay received Monday, May 13.

Johnson's report found the inn to be "unsafe and uninhabitable" and cited 30 code violations.

Vote higher than expected in Kentucky

FRANKFORT, Kentucky (AP) — Voter turnout for Kentucky's primary election was higher than projected.

A statement from the Secretary of State's office said unofficial results show nearly 20 percent of registered voters cast ballots in Tuesday's primary to choose nominees in the governor's race and other statewide offices. Voter turnout had been projected at 12.5 percent.

Kentucky Republican Gov. Matt Bevin fended off a strong primary challenge, setting up a long anticipated showdown in the November general election with arch-nemesis Andy Beshear, who won the Democratic primary. The two have fought in courtrooms over education and pension policies.

Voters also chose nominees for the statewide offices of attorney general, secretary of state, auditor, treasurer and agriculture commissioner.

The State Board of Elections meets June 4 to certify vote totals.

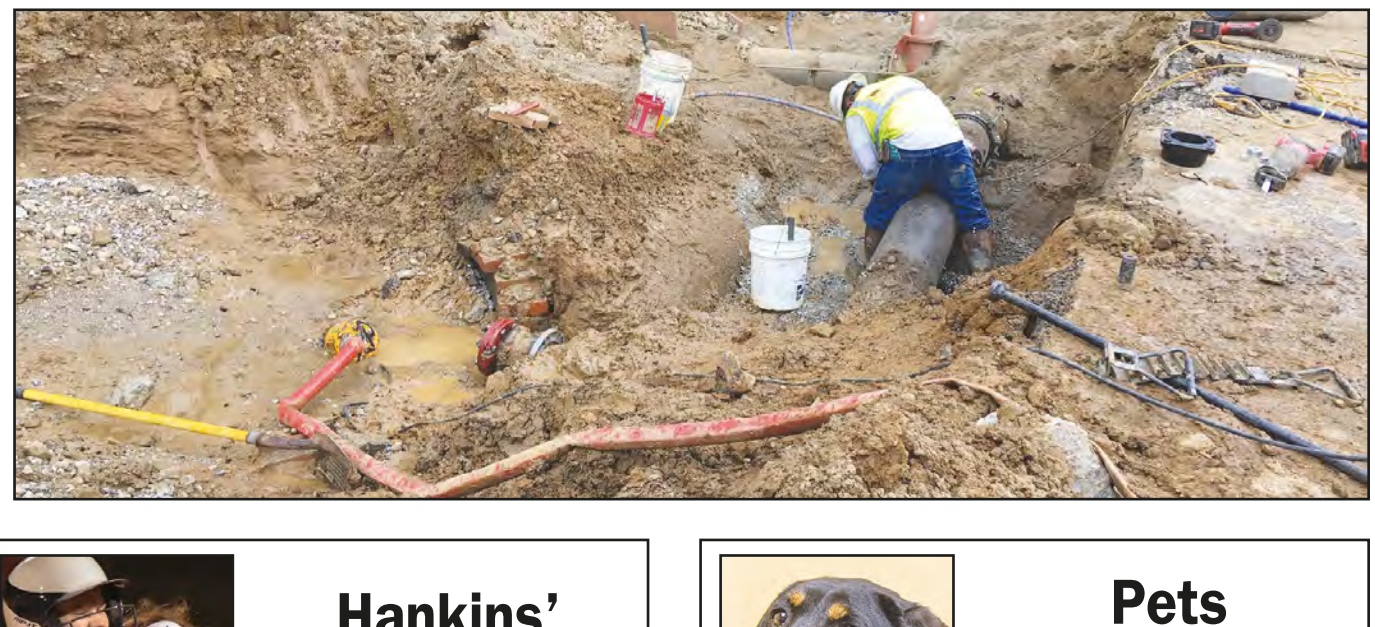
An unexpected bit of history flows into Project 421 site



Beaty Construction crews hit what they thought was a water line on the closed portion of East Second Street Tuesday morning. City crews at the scene worked to cap the line, which they determined came from an old underground cistern. The water department personnel trying to cap the line and stop the flow of water faced challenges because of the unique size and shape of the line, which is much older than the equipment they had on hand to fix this type of issue. The city said Beaty crews have hit a few water lines in the work area for the Project 421 bridge approach. The city marked the lines before work began, but that it is normal to hit utilities while excavating existing roads to put in new ones with the large and difficult-to-maneuver equipment. The cistern line that broke Monday — the red-orange pipe in the photo at right — was not marked because no one knew it was there, which shows what kinds of surprises crews can find when working in areas with long histories like that of downtown Madison. Vectren says natural gas caused Jeff house explosion

Courier staff report

EVANSVILLE — Natural gas was the cause of the house explosion in Jeffersonville which destroyed one home and damaged around 20 others early Sunday morning, Vectren energy delivery company said in a news release.

"Vectren, a CenterPoint Energy Company, wishes to extend its deepest sympathy to the families of those affected by Sunday morning's incident," the company said in a news release Tuesday evening. "We would like to thank the first responders and community agencies for their service and support, including the Jeffersonville Fire Department, Jeffersonville Police Department and American Red Cross."

Vectren crews immediately responded to the scene Sunday morning, activated their emergency repsonse plan and turned off natural gas service to neighboring homes and helped first responders evacuate the area.

"While the investigation is ongoing, it has now been determined the cause was natural gas. However, the source of the natural gas involved in the incident appears to have been in the interior of the home, not on pipeline or infrastructure owned by Vectren," the release said.

Vectren said it will continue to work with first responders, investigators and the Red Cross as they assist those who cannot return to their homes because of damage.

If you smell natural gas or suspect a natural gas leak, please call Vectren ask anyone who smells natural gas or suspects a natural gas leak to please call at 1-800-227-1376 or call 911.

Nearly 20 homes damaged by Jeffersonville explosion

By CHRIS MORRIS AND JOHN BOYLE
(Jeffersonville & New Albany) News and Tribune

JEFFERSONVILLE — One person was killed and two others were taken to University of Louisville Hospital with injuries after the house explosion early Sunday morning in the 900 block of Assembly Road.

The Jeffersonville Fire Department responded to a 911 call that came in just before 5 a.m. Sunday. The house where the explosion originated was gone when firefighters arrived.

"The damage was catastrophic," Jeffersonville Fire Department Sgt. Justin Ames said.

Ames said 18 to 20 homes near the explosion site sustained damage.

Jeffersonville Police confirmed one person was killed.

The Red Cross has set up a relief station for those displaced from their homes at First Christian Church on Middle Road.

Selena York, who lives in the neighborhood, said the noise from the explosion sounded like someone was "banging on my door."

"As soon as it happened I woke up," she said.

Ryan Brewer, who lives nearby, said his house shook from the explosion.

"I woke up and heard a lady screaming," he said. "It was like a terrifying scream. At first it sounded like a firecracker or gun shots and then I saw the flames."

He said he immediately ran outside after he heard the noise and the screams.

"You could see a flame," he said.

David White lives three houses down from the explosion site. He said he saw small flames, but no major fire, just a significant pressure blast that shook everything.

"I knew the guy [who lived in the home], and he was a pretty nice guy," White said from First Christian Church. "I just saw them the other day. His house totally exploded. There's nothing there, it's just totally disintegrated. It didn't catch on fire. It just totally blew apart. There's insulation clear down the street 10 houses down. You can see his pictures, letters and all of his personal stuff all over the place."

Jeffersonville Fire Department officials go through the debris following a house explosion in the 900 block of Assembly Drive Sunday. Up to 20 nearby homes were damaged by the explosion. (Photo courtesy of Sgt. Justin Ames, Jeffersonville Fire Department)

At first White thought a tree had landed on his house.

"I was asleep. I heard some noises, then felt the shake and stuff was shattering," he said. "I got up, but I couldn't tell whose house it was. All my glass had broken out. In my room, my light had fallen out. My ceiling split there in another room.

"The damage I have, from what I can tell, is from the pure vibration and power from the shaking of the earth. The trim on my front door is completely split. I'm not sure if it moved my house or not. My house is up on blocks, so I'm not sure if it twisted it off the foundation or not."

A man who was standing near the police barricade said his dad also lives in the neighborhood and knew the homeowners where the explosion took place. He said a couple and their dog lived in the residence.

The Jeffersonville Police Department Detective Division and the Jeffersonville Fire Department are conducting the investigation with assistance from Indiana State Police. In addition, utility companies are on scene assisting in the investigation, according to a release from JPD.

The Jeffersonville Police Department will maintain security and portions of the 900 block of Assembly Road will be closed for safety. The Jeffersonville Street Department is on scene and cleaning the debris from the roadway; however, the area will continue to be closed for the next several days, the release stated. There are several pieces of debris in elevated positions that pose a safety risk if they were to fall. Numerous houses near the explosion have been condemned by the Jeffersonville Building Commissioner due to structural damage.

Jeffersonville Mayor Mike Moore said the city was "deeply saddened by Sunday's home explosion," in a statement he released Sunday afternoon.

Indianapolis-area synagogue vandal gets 3-year sentence

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — A 21-year-old man has been sentenced to three years in prison for spray-painting anti-Semitic graffiti and lighting fires outside a synagogue. U.S. Attorney Josh Minkler said Nolan Brewer of Eminence was sentenced Monday evening for conspiring to violate the civil rights of Congregation Shaarey Tefilla. Minkler announced Tuesday that Brewer pleaded guilty to a federal hate crime. Nazi flags and iron crosses were found spray-painted July 28 on a brick shed outside the synagogue in Carmel, just north of Indianapolis. Several areas of the grass and ground around the shed were also scorched, leaving burn residue on part of the shed. Carmel Mayor Jim Brainard condemned the vandalism and Republican Gov. Eric Holcomb cited the incident in asking the Legislature to pass a hate crimes bill.

State sues family behind OxyContin

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana is joining other states pursuing lawsuits against the family behind the painkiller OxyContin, seeking to blame them for fueling the national opioid addiction crisis. The Indiana lawsuit was filed Monday against eight members of Sackler family who own Connecticut-based drugmaker Purdue Pharma. The Indiana attorney general's office filed a lawsuit against Purdue Pharma in November and at least 45 states have taken legal action against it in recent years. Indiana's new lawsuit claims the Sacklers wrongly reaped billions in profits by directing company strategies to downplay OxyContin's addiction risks. Attorney General Curtis Hill said the family's actions led to deaths across the country. Representatives for Purdue Pharma and Sackler family members have said such lawsuits misleadingly blame them for a problem that's far bigger than OxyContin.

City needs $5M to finish levee work

VINCENNES — Officials say they need about $5 million to complete improvements to a Wabash River levee to ensure that it remains federally accredited. The City of Vincennes expects that its earthen flood-control levee will be re-certified next year by the Federal Emergency Management Agency. But the Vincennes Sun-Commercial reported the historic community that was Indiana's first city, founded in 1732, first needs to replace seepage relief wells that extend about 3,000 feet along the levee.

Highway lanes closed after sinkhole opens

CHARLESTOWN— State transportation officials say a sinkhole that opened up overnight on a highway has forced the closure of a portion of that freeway. The Indiana Department of Transportation said eastbound lanes of Interstate 265 in Floyd County between Charlestown Road and Interstate 65 were closed early Wednesday after the sinkhole developed. Traffic is not being allowed onto the ramps at those locations. A contractor is now working to fill the sinkhole and repave the highway. INDOT said it hopes the lanes can re-open later Wednesday, weather permitting.

Explosion repairs at high school above $3M

CARMEL — Officials say it will cost about $3.4 million to complete repairs to a high school after an explosion blew off part of the roof and knocked down some walls. The December blast at Carmel High School was blamed on a natural gas leak and injured a school district worker and a contractor who were doing maintenance on a boiler. The district school board on Monday approved nearly $2.8 million in contracts to reconstruct the damaged areas. That's in addition to about $660,000 already paid for immediate repairs after the explosion that happened while the district was on winter break. Explosion damage closed some gymnasium and locker room areas in the 5,200-student school. School district officials say insurance is covering repair costs other than a $75,000 deductible.

Cells from Purdue super fan used for research

WEST LAFAYETTE — Cells from Tyler Trent, the Purdue University super fan and cancer activist who died in January, are being used by cancer researchers to study the disease. The Purdue Center for Cancer Research said Tuesday it's honoring Trent's legacy through three new collaborative research initiatives, including one using his cancer cells. The center's Director Tim Ratliff said in a statement that part of Trent's "incredible lasting legacy is that he will help current and future patients." Trent died on Jan. 1 at age 20 after a battle with bone cancer. He became a social media star with his positive attitude and determination to live every day to the fullest.

$26M cleanup starting on contaminated canal

HAMMOND — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said a $26 million cleanup will begin this month of contamination on the Lake George Canal. The EPA said sediment will be dredged in Hammond and East Chicago, Indiana. Work is expected to be completed in 2020. The canal flows into Lake Michigan and is part of the Grand Calumet River Area of Concern, which has been identified by the U.S. and Canada as a Great Lakes basin toxic hotspot. The East Chicago Waterway Management District, Atlantic Richfield Co. and BP Products North America are involved in the cleanup. The river flows 13 miles through Gary, East Chicago and Hammond. Steelmaking, meatpacking and oil refining contaminated the river's sediment with heavy metals and PCBs as well as oil and grease.

State Parks pools, beaches opening

FRANKFORT — With temperatures climbing and a holiday weekend coming up, many swimming pools and beaches at Kentucky State Parks are opening. The Parks Department said that while lodge pools are reserved for lodge and cottage guests, community pools at several parks are open to the public for a fee. They are Greenbo Lake, Carter Caves, Levi Jackson, Blue Licks Battlefield, Cumberland Falls, E.P. "Tom" Sawyer, Kincaid Lake, Natural Bridge and Fort Boonesborough. Also, the park system's 10 beaches are free and open to the public. The beaches are at Pennyrile Forest, Lake Barkley, Kentucky Dam Village, Barren River Lake, Buckhorn Lake, Rough River Dam, Lake Malone, Nolin Lake, Carr Creek and Green River Lake. Pool openings at Barren River Lake, E.P. "Tom" Sawyer, Levi Jackson and Lake Barkley will be delayed.

Confederate statue at cemetery defaced

BARDSTOWN — A Confederate statue at a cemetery in Bardstown has been vandalized with orange paint, similar to vandalism that's appeared on a Confederate statue in Louisville. Bardstown police told news outlets that the paint was splashed across the century-old statue sometime late last week. The statue features a Confederate soldier standing above a portrait of Gen. Robert E. Lee. It's surrounded by 67 Confederate soldier grave markers. A photo of the vandalism shows Lee's face covered in the paint, which then drips across the statue's embossed inscriptions. Bardstown police Sgt. Michael Medley said this may be the first time an area Civil War monument has been vandalized. Authorities are reviewing surveillance video.

Hidden reports mask scope of harm from faulty heart device

By CHRISTINA JEWETT
Kaiseer Health News

Faced with the possibility that a bout of abnormal heartbeats could end his life, in 2006, Dr. Marc Sicklick had a small device implanted in his chest that would shock it back into rhythm. Soon he would struggle with another life-or-death choice: whether to remove the Sprint Fidelis, which was deemed dangerous and recalled in 2007 after it had been implanted in hundreds of thousands of patients.

The Sprint Fidelis was prone to giving patients random electrical jolts — and sometimes failed to fire in genuine cardiac emergencies, according to manufacturer Medtronic's letter to doctors.

What Sicklick and thousands of others in his position have not known is that the Food and Drug Administration quietly took steps to keep critical information out of the public light. Shortly after the recall, the FDA and Medtronic made a deal to keep reports about the widely used device's malfunction incidents — now totaling 50,000 — shielded from public scrutiny.

The FDA has allowed device makers to file 1.1 million reports of injuries or malfunctions to a little-known internal FDA database since 2016, a recent Kaiser Health News investigation has found, spurring top FDA officials to pledge to open those records within weeks and shut down the "alternative summary reporting" program.

One of those exemptions covered the Sprint Fidelis. In May 2008, it was granted a "remedial action" exemption — allowed when "the manufacturer has initiated reasonable and appropriate actions to mitigate the problem(s)" and further reports of harm will not "provide any significant new data," FDA spokeswoman Deborah Kotz said in an email. She said the FDA hasn't granted such an exemption since 2015 and has "effectively ended the program," and could not say whether that data would be opened to the public soon.

The logic of the FDA's approach sits poorly with patients like Sicklick who have a Sprint Fidelis buried deep in their chests. "Worrying about it not working [has] caused a tremendous, tremendous amount of anxiety in me, and I'm not an anxious person," said Sicklick, an allergy specialist from Long Island, N.Y. "I think the FDA should be making this information public."

Six top cardiologists interviewed for this report said they weren't aware the FDA had granted Medtronic such an exemption.

"Amazing. Really amazing," said Dr. Robert Hauser, the Minnesota cardiologist whose research first brought the high rate of Sprint Fidelis failures to light. "It's not in the best interest of the patients who have these devices."

Hauser and other doctors have spent years helping patients navigate the risks of living with a cardiac implant that could harm them or undergoing a complicated device-removal surgery that could prove deadly.

The device is a pair of wires tied to a defibrillator designed to shock the heart back into a normal rhythm. By the time it was recalled in late 2007, the Sprint Fidelis had been implanted in the heart tissue of 268,000 patients.

While doctors and patients can voluntarily report problems with the device, the FDA requires device makers to report to MAUDE the injuries they become aware of — unless they have an exemption.

Through March, Medtronic says, it logged more than 50,000 instances of harm or malfunction, with more than one problem reported for some of the 35,000 cases.

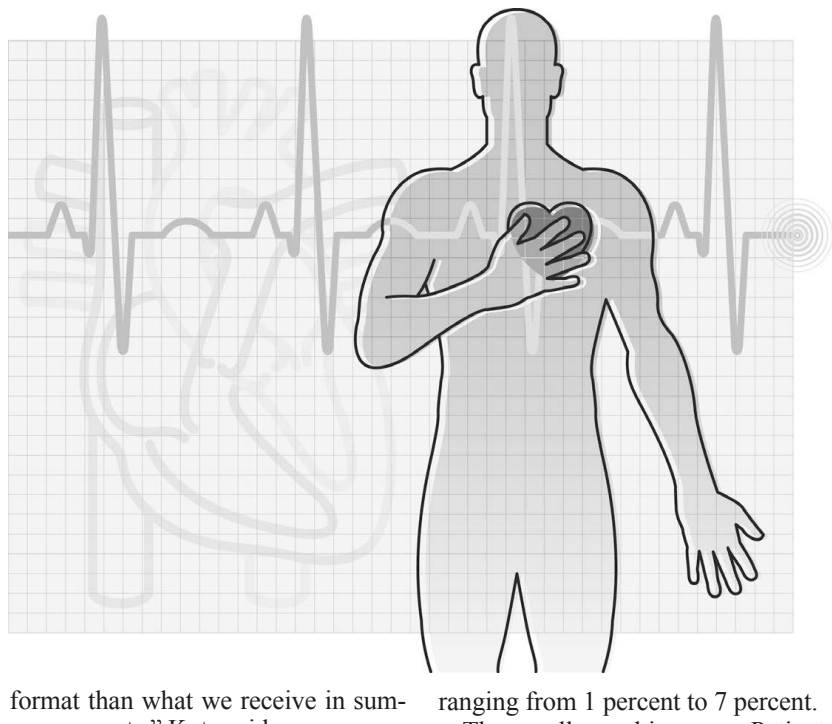
While a few reports in the MAUDE database refer to the existence of an exemption for the Sprint Fidelis, the FDA has said these "remedial action" reports are filed internally and available to the public through a Freedom of Information Act request, which can take nearly two years to process.

Medtronic, which supplied data on the exemption for this story, said that its Independent Physician Quality Panel has been reviewing data on the device since 2007 and that the information has been periodically reported to physicians. "Patient safety is our top priority," spokesman Jeffrey Trauring said in an email.

Trauring said his company operates the "most comprehensive [defibrillator] lead surveillance program in the industry." He also said Medtronic has updated information for doctors about the lead's performance with the "most reliable data," as compared with the FDA's open MAUDE database and its "significant and well-established limitations."

Kotz said via email that the FDA has "worked closely with Medtronic" to monitor the performance of the recalled leads and "ensure appropriate patient management recommendations are available to clinicians" in twice-yearly performance reports.

"[Medtronic provides] additional information on product performance and safety in a more comprehensive format than what we receive in summary reports," Kotz said.



None of the Medtronic publications, though, offer details about the 50,000 malfunction and harm reports the company lodged with the FDA over 10 years. Those until-now-unacknowledged reports define the number of lead fractures or instances of inappropriate shocks.

The Medtronic reports tally less specific "advisory related events." They also track more detailed malfunctions for a smaller number of devices either shipped back to the company or enrolled in a study.

A dozen years ago, before Sprint Fidelis was recalled, Hauser was a practicing cardiologist at the Minneapolis Heart Institute when two patients in one weekend arrived with fractured Sprint Fidelis leads. Hauser said he looked at the center's files and found five similar cases.

Then he delved into MAUDE and found even more cases. He called Medtronic. He published a paper about what he had found, which he said "went viral."

On Oct. 15, 2007, Medtronic issued a recall, saying the device gave some patients inappropriate shocks and was a "possible or likely" contributing factor in five patient deaths. The company later revised the death count to 13.

The thinnest defibrillator lead marketed to date, researchers said the Sprint Fidelis wires were prone to send faulty signals to the defibrillator, causing patient injuries.

In its 2007 letter to doctors, Medtronic advised against surgically removing the lead, citing rates of major complications, including death, ranging from 1 percent to 7 percent.

The recall was big news. Patients would testify to Congress or tell journalists about unexpected shocks that felt like a cannon to the chest or being kicked by a horse.

Then-House oversight committee chairman Henry Waxman fired off a letter to the FDA a week after the recall, in part asking about the company's reporting of adverse events.

The agency acknowledged in a Dec. 13 response letter that Medtronic was reporting "the majority of adverse events" on their implantable defibrillators to the FDA "in aggregate electronically, via compact discs."

Medtronic's Trauring said at the time the company had an "alternative summary reporting" exemption for cases of lead infections or erosion, which meant the wires had moved out of position inside the body.

Six months later, on May 8, 2008, the FDA gave Medtronic a second exemption, allowing the company to report problems central to the recall outside of public scrutiny.

Trauring said in an email that under that second "remedial action" reporting exemption, Medtronic reported a total of 36,914 cases with 50,205 complications.

They include more than 22,000 instances of lead fracture and nearly 2,900 incidents of inappropriate shocks. Trauring said the company discontinued the summary reporting on Nov. 1, 2018, due to low volumes of issues.

Death cases were not filed with the reports granted exemptions. Since the 2007 recall, more than 2,300 reports of deaths in which the device was suspected to have played a role were filed with the FDA and are publicly available, records filed in MAUDE show. A 2009 report says one patient had 13 painful shocks and then bleeding during a surgery to remove his faulty lead. An attorney reported to the FDA that within months that patient died.

In 2012, a patient with a faulty device died after a major vessel was torn during a surgery to remove the lead. In 2015, a patient went to the emergency room after getting five shocks, was deemed to be in heart failure "exacerbation" and died in the hospital four days later, reports in MAUDE show.

Meanwhile, researchers trying to measure the harm resulting from the faulty device were reaching different conclusions. While Medtronic-backed studies were reporting a three-year lead survival rate of 95 percent to 97 percent, Hauser and his colleagues found a lower rate, 88 percent, according to a 2010 article in the Netherlands Heart Journal.

Dr. John Mandrola, a cardiologist at Baptist Medical Associates in Louisville, said the Sprint Fidelis was the "worst cardiac device problem" he has seen in 22 years of practice. He said some of his patients were traumatized by unexpected shocks and the repercussions went on for years. That the FDA did not publicly report ongoing harm "seems problematic to me," he said. "What is the benefit to the public of an exemption?"

Dr. Frederic Resnic, cardiovascular medicine division chairman at Lahey Hospital & Medical Center in Burlington, Massachusetts, and a Tufts University medical school professor, has testified to Congress about device safety. He said in an email that he commends the FDA for recent work to modernize safety surveillance for medical devices, but the "lack of communication and transparency" over the Sprint Fidelis exemption "challenges the FDA's unique role as the primary, trusted, information source regarding medical device safety."

Dr. Rita Redberg, a University of California-San Francisco cardiology professor and editor of JAMA Internal Medicine, said the FDA has acknowledged that device-related problems are woefully under-reported.

"Now the FDA is making it worse intentionally," she said. "I can't think of a justification for it, and I think it's a dangerous practice."

FDA to end program that hid millions of reports on faulty medical devices

By Christina Jewett
Kaiser Health News

The Food and Drug Administration announced it is shutting down its controversial "alternative summary reporting" program and ending its decades-long practice of allowing medical device makers to conceal millions of reports of harm and malfunctions from the general public.

The agency said it will open past records to the public within weeks.

A Kaiser Health News investigation in March revealed that the obscure program was vast, collecting 1.1 million reports since 2016. The program, which began about 20 years ago, was so little-known that forensic medical device experts and even a recent FDA commissioner were unaware of its existence.

Former FDA official Dr. S. Lori Brown said ending the program now is a "victory for patients and consumers."

"The No. 1 job of the FDA — it shouldn't be 'buyer beware' — is to have the information available to people so they can have information about the devices they are going to put in their body," Brown said.

FDA principal deputy commissioner Dr. Amy Abernethy and its device center director, Dr. Jeff Shuren, announced the decision to terminate the program in a statement on increasing transparency about the safety of breast implants.

The agency has for years allowed makers of breast implants to report hundreds of thousands of injuries and malfunctions out of the public eye, federal records show.

"We believe these steps for more transparent medical device reports will contribute to greater public awareness of breast implant adverse events," Abernethy and Shuren said in a statement earlier this month. "This is part of a larger effort to end the alternative summary reporting program for all medical devices."

FDA spokeswoman Angela Stark said the agency will also end "alternative summary reporting" exemptions still in place for makers of implantable cardiac defibrillators, pacemakers and tooth implants. The FDA has said the program was originally designed to allow for more efficient internal review of well-known risks.

The agency said it began winding down the program in mid-2017, revoking many reporting exemptions, including those for saline breast implants and for balloon pumps used inside patients' blood vessels.

At that point, the agency required device makers with ongoing exemptions to file quarterly reports in its public device-harm database known as MAUDE, short for the Manufacturer and User Facility Device Experience.

Still, FDA data provided to KHN shows that during the first nine months of 2018 the FDA continued to accept more than 190,000 injury reports and 45,000 malfunction reports under the hidden "alternative summary reporting" program.

Ronni Solomon, vice president and chief policy officer of the ECRI Institute, which studies device safety, said the staff uses the FDA's open data on a daily basis to look for signals that might show heightened risks with a particular device.

"We think it's really vital for the sake of transparency, for the sake of policy, for sake of science," she said. "We're really glad to see this, the sooner the better."

The agency said its forthcoming data release will be for the alternative summary reports filed before mid-2017. The FDA for years reached agreements with makers of about 100 devices, allowing them to cease public reports of certain types of problems. The agency previously said the agreements and resulting records were available only by filing a Freedom of Information Act request, a process that can take months or even years.

Going forward, device makers will be required to file individual reports describing each case of patient harm related to a medical device.

The FDA has not said it will stop allowing device makers to file other types of device-harm exemption reports that are withheld from the public, such as when there is mass litigation over a device or when a company is submitting reports from an independent device-tracking registry. Nor has a plan been announced to open those records, which contain reports of harm related to pelvic mesh and surgical robots and reports of deaths related to several cardiac devices.

The FDA had granted Covidien, now a division of Medtronic, a long-standing "alternative summary reporting" exemption for its surgical staplers, a device used to cut tissues and vessels and quickly seal them during a variety of surgeries.

In 2016, when just 84 reports of stapler-related harm were disclosed in the FDA's MAUDE database, almost 10,000 more malfunction reports were sent directly to the FDA's in-house database, the agency acknowledged.

The device has been subject to numerous lawsuits over patient deaths and grave harm.

Doris Levering alleged in court that a stapler malfunction during liver surgery caused profuse bleeding that left her husband, Mark, 62, with serious brain damage and unable to walk. She applauded the agency's decision to open the database. "It's just wonderful to know that this information is going to be out in the open and not covered up," she said. "Now doctors who need to find the information will be able to find it."

The surgeon, hospital and device maker have all denied wrongdoing in an ongoing legal case.

The FDA has announced a May 30 advisory board meeting to review the agency's oversight of surgical staplers.

The FDA will leave in place a newer summary-reporting program that allows makers of more than 5,500 types of devices to send the agency spreadsheets logging device malfunctions. Unlike the "alternative summary reporting" program, device makers will not be allowed to report serious injuries using that approach.

Over the years, the FDA has had an uneven record of disclosing its "exemption" reports to advisers who review the safety of individual devices.

In February, FDA officials presented an advisory panel on gynecological devices with data showing 476 adverse events in 2017 related to a certain type of pelvic mesh. That panel was not briefed on nearly 12,000 reports filed by eight mesh makers in 2017, under a special exemption for lawsuit-related reports, according to an agency spokeswoman and a review of public records.

FDA spokeswoman Deborah Kotz said in an email that those "litigation" summary reports did not contain enough detail for the FDA to determine whether they shed any light on the safety question at hand.

The FDA ultimately took decisive action, though, ordering makers of the type of mesh under review to stop marketing those products, which were used to support sagging pelvic organs.

In late March, after KHN's investigation landed, the FDA convened another panel to review breast implant-related injuries and a rare form of lymphoma. For that meeting, the agency did provide a full tally of previously unreported injury and malfunction reports related to breast implants.

As of Thursday, though, the agency said it would leave the textured breast implants linked to a rare lymphoma on the market.

Matt Baretich, a Denver-area biomedical engineer who advises health systems on device safety, is eager to examine the hidden reports as they're released by the FDA.

"I'm really interested to see what information has been hidden so I can go back," Baretich said. "I may have been looking for that information and not found anything and thought there was not a problem."

Charlie's Beat

Erik Brunner is the bon vivant bad boy of Madison music

By CHARLIE ROHLFING

When Erik Brunner was in high school here in Madison, he tried to soak up all the live music he could.

"Guys like Jimmy Davis, Tom Steveley, Daryl Hewitt, I worshipped those guys. Still do," says Erik. "They'd be playing at JoeyG's, and they would let me in to listen if I was with a parent. Sometimes my dad would take me.

"But other times dad couldn't make it, so I'd sit out front trying to listen. Jim and Leah Pruett would come along, and I'd get them to pretend to be my parents and get me in. To this day I still call Jim 'Pops.'"

Eventually Erik made his way to Ball State and got on with a band called Stomping Ground.

"We played our first gig on my 21st birthday," Erik said. "We were playing so much. Festivals, bars, events. We were kind of a jam band, playing for six hours straight. I'm not sure how I kept my grades up through all that, but I did."

Then his life took a very interesting turn. "I got offered this internship out in L.A. at a record label called Milan Records. They specialized in soundtracks and movie scores, but I'd heard a demo from this band that I thought was amazing. So I basically just bugged my bosses until they signed them. The band was Devil Makes Three, and it's still the most successful band they had.

"But that was kind of the last gasp for the record industry while I was out there. Napster had just hit the scene and everybody was pirating music. Eventually I headed back to Indiana to finish my degree at Ball State."

Not ready to completely settle down yet, Erik went to Hungary for a year to teach English to young students.

"One day I grabbed a guitar during class and played them some American rock music. It blew their minds!" Erik said. "So they call this assembly and bring all the kids into the gym to hear me play.

"I was doing some folk songs and some original tunes. Then some kid shouts for me to play Guns N' Roses. Well, all I can think of is their song Patience," he said. "So I put my head down and close my eyes and I just pour out my soul on that song. I totally nail it. When I look up I see 200 Hungarian kids just sobbing and holding each other. It was awesome."

Back in Madison, Erik joined the band Same Soul for a couple years, and then The Wheel with Chris Jesse, J.T. Glasgow and Tom Steveley.

Erik Brunner

"That was the greatest rock and roll band I've ever been part of," Erik said. "Tight playing, huge sound, good originals, just a great band."

The wheels came off that band eventually, pun intended.

"Life happens," says Erik. "A few of us formed the Corn Creek Pickers, and we did a thing called the Half Fast Pickers. But life moves on. Today I do more solo stuff, at the Taproom or Streamcliff or private parties. I played RiverRoots last year, which was a blast."

Coincidentally and fortuitously, Erik has a gig coming up very soon at the Off Broadway Taproom on June 1st. Let's all go and maybe we can coax him to play Patience by Guns N' Roses.

When I asked if he is still writing songs, Erik didn't hesitate.

"I write a new song in my head every day on the drive to work! I don't get them all written down, but I'm still creating every day."

Beshear vs. Bevin political showdown set in Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Kentucky (AP) — In Kentucky political circles, Beshear vs. Bevin has become shorthand for the bitter feud between the state's governor and attorney general over legal issues with sweeping implications for the future.

The drama between Republican Gov. Matt Bevin and Democratic Attorney General Andy Beshear has been spiced by subplots — some involving Beshear's family. Now all Kentucky voters will get a chance to take sides at the ballot box on a rivalry that has clearly gotten personal.

As their parties' nominees after Tuesday's primary election for governor, they'll face off in November in a grudge match that will have national political experts watching for vulnerabilities among Republican incumbents closely aligned with President Donald Trump.

Beshear outlasted two prominent rivals — Rocky Adkins and Adam Edelen — to win the Democratic nomination.

Bevin fended off a strong challenge from state Rep. Robert Goforth, who garnered nearly 40 percent of the Republican vote.

The main event could become the most vitriolic campaign Kentuckians have seen in years.

"The whole background of the relationship means it's going to be a grudge match," longtime Kentucky political commentator Al Cross said. "There is no precedent, at least in modern Kentucky political history, for a governor's race with this kind of personal rancor."

Democratic strategist Mark Riddle predicted it will turn into a "political brawl."

Bevin fired an opening shot Tuesday night, ridiculing how Beshear campaigned on his legal challenges of the Bevin administration.

"It's a lot of empty talk, but this is what we've been getting from Beshears," Bevin said Tuesday night. "And now the people will have this choice — if they want four more years of empty Beshear. ... I don't think they do."

Beshear, in turn, scolded Bevin for his "nasty attacks" and what he calls the governor's bullying of teachers and other critics.

Wielding his authority as the state's top lawyer, Beshear challenged Bevin's executive actions to make wholesale changes to boards and commissions, and sought to block Bevin-backed pension and education initiatives.

In the highest-profile case, it was Beshear's lawsuit that led Kentucky's Supreme Court to strike down a Bevin-supported pension law on procedural grounds last year.

Bevin's quarrels with Beshear haven't been limited to the attorney general.

Andy Beshear's father, Steve, was a popular two-term governor who preceded Bevin in office and has been the target of the Republican governor's attacks.

Even Beshear's mother hasn't been immune from Bevin's executive actions.

Early in his term, Bevin removed Andy Beshear's mother, former first lady Jane Beshear, from the Kentucky Horse Park Commission while overhauling the commission. Steve Beshear had appointed his wife to the unpaid position shortly before leaving office. At the time, a Bevin spokeswoman called the appointment an "embarrassment."

As his time in office wound down, Steve Beshear also named an education center for his wife, who had been active on education issues, on the state Capitol's grounds in Frankfort.

Bevin later renamed the center to honor Kentucky Gold Star families.

Last year, Bevin's administration extended a contract with an Indiana law firm to investigate alleged corruption in Steve Beshear's administration.

The potential cost to Kentucky taxpayers at the time doubled to reach $1 million, the Lexington Herald-Leader reported.

Steve Beshear referred to the investigation as a waste of taxpayers' money based on Bevin's "political vendetta" against him.

Meanwhile, a legacy-building decision by Steve Beshear sparked a key policy dispute between Bevin and Andy Beshear.

As governor, Steve Beshear expanded Kentucky's Medicaid program to include coverage for able-bodied adults, increasing the rolls by more than 400,000 people. It was an option given to states by former President Barack Obama's signature health-care law.

Bevin says the expansion is too expensive to continue. The governor has aggressively tried to impose new rules to require "able-bodied" adult recipients to get a job, go to school or volunteer.

A group of Kentucky residents sued to block those rules, with the help of advocacy groups. A federal judge blocked the rules and Bevin's administration appealed.

Andy Beshear has denounced Bevin's plan as "callous" and said it would hurt rural health care and strip health coverage for thousands of Kentuckians.

"It's fair to conclude from all their public pronouncements that these guys really don't like each other," Cross said.

The two candidates have plenty of other things to talk about if they simply stick to matters of policy.

Bevin supports charter schools as part of a school-choice agenda. Beshear opposes them, saying they'll divert money from public schools. Bevin is an outspoken abortion opponent. Beshear supports abortion rights.

The Democratic challenger supports expanded gambling as a way to generate revenue for underfunded public pension systems. Bevin calls expanded gambling a "sucker's bet."

"The race ought not to be as personal as their relationship has been, because there are plenty of issues on which they can have legitimate disagreement without getting personal," Cross said.

Hankins' RBI single in 9th clinches 5-4 Pacers win

An unlikely hero emerged at the end of Tuesday's marathon sectional softball showdown between Ohio River Valley Conference rivals Switzerland County and Milan and if you don't believe it just ask the Pacers' Nora Hankins.

Tied 4-4 since the top of the seventh inning, the Pacers and Indians had almost battled through two extra innings when host Switzerland County put together a game-winning rally with the bottom of its batting order to deny what had been a determined Milan comeback 5-4.

Switzerland's Allie Bruce opened the ninth by reaching base after she was hit by a pitch but Madesyn Byrd then made the first out by popping up a bunt in front of the plate and having the ball hit her after she had stepped into fair territory. However, Aerial Oeffinger's bloop single to right field — a ball that landed fair just behind the bag at first — ended up putting Bruce on third with Oeffinger taking second on the throw.

All of that set the stage for Hankins, a freshman who Switzerland coach Hannah Cook said "hadn't really hit the ball until two or three games ago." But that's exactly what Hankins did in the clutch and nobody was more surprised than her.

"It still hasn't registered yet. My head's still kind of spinning. I don't know how I did it. Honestly, I'm not really that good of a softball player."

Switzerland County's Nora Hankins after her walk-off RBI single in the ninth inning gave the Pacers a 5-04 sectional win over Milan

Down to her final strike, Hankins connected on a pitch from Milan ace Erin Widner and the ball floated right over the outstretched arms of Milan shortstop Hailey Smith and dropped into shallow left-center for a walk-off single that scored Bruce with the game-winning run.

Moments after the game, Hankins was still swirling from the celebration and quick to admit that she had no idea what Widner threw to her on the big hit nor could she really form many thoughts about what had just happened to set off the big Pacers party.

"It feels like a dream. I don't even know honestly what she threw me. I had two strikes and I knew I just needed to hit it," Hankins said, laughing nervously. "It still hasn't registered yet. My head's still kind of spinning. I don't know how I did it. Honestly, I'm not really that good of a softball player."

The remark drew huge laughter from her coaches because they too knew that the Pacers might have received a gift from the softball gods.

"She is the quietest kid," Cook said of her timid freshman. "She didn't even hit the ball until about two or three games ago. I think out of all of our players — I don't want to say she was the least expected — but ... She gets in her head more than anybody. And to see her do that as a freshman? That's just huge for us. And that's just huge for her future."

Hankins' hit brought to a close what had been a roller-coaster ride for the Pacers. It was all fun in the beginning when Switzerland was jumping out to a 4-0 lead and pitcher Lilly Sparks was mowing down Milan hitters. But a massive solo home run to left field by Milan's Taryn Cline in the fourth inning, a two-run rally in the fifth and a clutch score in the top of the seventh to tie the game made it seem like the Pacers' might be going off the track.

"Those that paid got their money's worth tonight," Cook laughed. "Two great teams battled it out and for that you can't ask any more."

Trailing 4-3 and down to its final two outs, Milan (12-12) came through in the seventh on a one-out double down the right field line by Olivia Davis and a bloop RBI single to left field by Courtney Bruns to tie the game. Switzerland loaded the bases

Hilltoppers walk over Borden to 1st sectional softball win since '09

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer

LANESVILLE — There's an old adage in baseball/softball that says "walks will haunt" and nowhere was that more evident than in Lanesville on Monday.

Despite committing 10 errors in the field and getting out-hit 13-8, Shawe Memorial rolled to a 24-16 win over Borden on the strength of 27 walks — and four hit batters — in the opening round of the Class A Sectional 62 Softball Tournament.

Those free passes allowed the Hilltoppers to overcome a disastrous start that saw them staring down a mercy-rule exit with a 14-run sixth inning and claim the program's first postseason win since 2009 — the last time Shawe won a sectional title.

"It's huge for the program. I'm extremely ecstatic for the three seniors because Kristen (Snodgrass) has worked hard for four years and Shannen (Itell) and Charity (Green) have worked hard for three years. It's nice to see that dividend pay off," Shawe coach Tim Torrance said. "Our junior high program is starting to come along so hopefully this well set a foundation for year after year after year to come."

Shawe waited until the last game of the regular season to pick up its first win and faced a sectional opponent in Borden that was going through similar struggles this season. But for three innings it was the Braves, not the Hilltoppers, who were in complete control.

Borden (2-11) jumped out to an 8-0 lead after the first half-inning. The Braves added two runs in the second, a run in the third and four more in the fourth to seemingly take complete control of the game.

It was Shawe mistakes, not Borden's bats, that did most of the damage through the first four innings. The Hilltoppers committed nine errors over that span and also had seven passed balls and three mental mistakes that led to just three earned runs.

Needless to say, Torrance wasn't pleased with the way his team opened the game.

"I told them how horribly disappointed I was in the start that we got because I thought after Friday night's win, we would come out and play more inspired," Torrance said. "I'm sure the kids had some nerves but that's no excuse. In a game like this, you've got to come out and play. It's the same basic fundamentals and concepts we've been doing for 17 games. You just can't have that kind of start."

But there were early signs that Shawe was going to be able to crawl back. Borden starting pitcher Elizabeth Hoffman was walking batters at an alarming pace and Shawe left the bases loaded in each of the first three innings. But the Hilltoppers also scratched out four runs over that span, all on either errors or bases-loaded walks.

Shawe senior pitcher Kristen Snodgrass rips off her face mask and flashes a big smile after recording the final out of the Hilltoppers' 24-16 sectional softball win over Borden on Monday at Lanesville.

Shawe began its comeback in the bottom of the fourth, trailing 15-4 and just six outs away from watching its season end. And the difference was a change in mindset at the plate.

"I must have sat over there in the third-base box and said 'patience' to every batter that walked to the plate," Torrance said. "In the fourth, they finally started to do it."

Shawe (2-16) had already drawn 10 walks off Hoffman

Cubs one bad inning, late hit from knocking off Greensburg

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier Sports Editor

Madison softball was just one bad defensive inning and a late hit away from knocking off Greensburg Monday to extend its season and advance to the semifinals of the IHSAA Madison Sectional.

The Pirates held off the host Cubs 7-4 with the pivotal runs scored in a disastrous fifth inning where Greensburg needed just two hits and pitcher Abby Moore's only walk of the game to score three times and seize a 4-1 lead on a three throwing errors.

Up until the fifth, the Cubs and Moore were locked in a pitchers' duel with Greensburg's Rose Morrison.

The Pirates had struck first when sophomore first baseman Ellie DeWeese launched a solo home run high over the fence in left field for a 1-0 lead in the top of the third. However, Madison answered right back in the bottom of the inning when sophomore designated player Jaylahn Honaker belted a triple to the fence in right field and senior shortstop Bailey Dyer delivered an RBI single to left to knot the game 1-1.

Greensburg stranded a Madison runner in the fourth before Morrison struck out the Madison side in the bottom of the fourth.

The Pirates' big inning started in the fifth when DeWeese singled to center field, Morrison walked and both advanced on a passed ball. Catcher Kristen Adams then flied out to center field but both runners tagged up and scored on a throwing error. Melina Wilkison then singled up the middle and scored on back-to-back straight throwing errors when she tried to steal second but ended up going all the way home.

"We seem to have that bad inning every time out and this time it was the fifth," Madison coach Tony Ralston said. "It was just a few simple plays ... It wasn't a lack of effort. We just didn't make the plays. We make those one or two plays and I think it's a whole different ballgame.

"We had a throw go off-line and it just snowballed," Ralston said with a grimace. "It seems like when we make one mistake, we'll make two or three. We've got to learn to limit our mistakes … but we're going to get there."

Greensburg tacked on two more runs in the sixth and one in the seventh. Back-to-back one out singles by Carlee Phillips and DeWeese and a sacrifice bunt by Morrison set the table for Adams' two-run single to center in the sixth and a leadoff triple to right field by Elizabeth Pavy and a RBI sacrifice fly by Bailey Springmeyer got the job done in the seventh.

Meanwhile, the Cubs stranded two in the sixth — a single by Emma Cammack and a walk by Hannah Uhl — when Paige Young lifted a fly ball to left field that barely stayed in the park before Morgan Cahall became Morrison's 11th and final strikeout victim and the slap-hitting Holt grounded back to the pitcher to end the inning.

"Paige Young hit a ball deep to left center that could have made it a two-run ballgame going into the last inning … it's just a matter of inches of how close we were to putting a lot of pressure on them," Ralston noted.

The Cubs went to work quickly in the seventh with a walk by Moore, a single to shallow center field by Honaker and a single to center by Dyer to load the bases.

But while Greensburg had earlier delivered key hits or benefited from Madison errors to score its runs, the Cubs had to trade outs for runs. Madison pushed two runs across with an RBI ground out to first by Kennedy Stidham to score one and an RBI fly out to right by Cammack to score the

Rebels win finale, share ORVC baseball crown

COURIER STAFF REPORT

Riley Elliott and Landon DeAtley combined on a five-inning no-hitter as Southwestern baseball rolled to a 18-0 win over Crothersville on Monday in Hanover.

Elliott struck out five and walked two in two innings while DeAtley struck out seven and walked one in three innings of relief.

With the dominating pitching, Southwestern didn't need many runs. But the Rebels went ahead and pounded out 15 hits for 18 runs.

The Rebels scored in each of their four innings on offense, getting two runs in the first, one in the second, six in the third and nine in the fourth to end the game on the mercy rule.

Freshman Zach Cole went 3-for-3 with two doubles, an RBI and three runs scored while senior Talon Harmon was 2-for-3 with a double, a run and an RBI. Nate Lichlyter was 2-for-3 with a run and two RBIs, and Ethan Stewart was 2-for-3 with a double, two runs and an RBI.

Bailey Elliott smashed a home run, scored twice and drove in two runs, Brady McLain had a triple, two RBIs and two runs, Jackson Stockdale had a triple and scored a run, Tyler Kramer had a hit and two RBIs, Riley Elliott had a hit and an RBI, and Mitchell Adcock had a hit and scored a run.

In addition to closing out the season with a win, Southwestern also learned that it clinched a share of its first Ohio River Valley Conference championship since 1999. Milan held on for a 9-4 win over Class A No. 3 Rising Sun Monday, forcing a three-way tie atop the standings between the three schools.

The Rebels closed out the regular season with a 17-9 record. Southwestern plays Milan in the Class 2A Sectional semifinals tonight at South Ripley.

Switz. 1600 relay breaks school record at regional

Local girls wrap up track & field season at regional

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Switzerland County's 1600-meter relay team set school record at the IHSAA Girls Track & Field Regional at Bloomington North on Tuesday.

The team of Ally Furnish, Raylinn Kappes, Abby Niswander and Leah Anders crossed the line in 4:19.32 to place seventh in a field of extremely fast runners that saw the quartet from Bloomington North win in 4:03.64.

No local athlete or relay finished in the top three to earn a berth in next week's state finals at Indiana University.

Switzerland's Aleiah Thomas was the top local finisher with a fifth place in the high jump at 5 feet, 1 inch, missing a state berth by just 2 inches. Anders was the only other top-10 finisher, running 10th in the 800-meter run in 2:31.88.

Furnish was 12th in the 300-meter hurdles in 50.28, the 3200 relay team of Matty Anderson, Alisha Detmer, Allison Detmer and Keirstan Oeffinger was 15th in 11:41.16, and Oeffinger was 16th in the 800 run in 2:45.80 for Switzerland, which placed 20th as a team with six points.

Madison's top finish was the 3200 relay team of Chloe Ferris, Kelsey Bilz, Clare Wilber and Brett Cahall in 11th with a time of 10:59.95. Lundun Perry was 12th in the 100 dash in 13.36, Addison Hill was 13th in the discus at 99 feet, 8 inches and Cahall was 14th in the 1600 run in 5:58.08, The 400 relay team of Harper Watson, Perry, Emily Skirvin and Jordyn Bilz was 15th in 53.99, Watson was 16th in the 400 dash in 1:05.83 and Emily Kiefer failed to record a height in the pole vault.

"I was pleased with the effort and competitiveness of our team. We had several events where we had athletes competing and it was great for many of them to have the experience," Madison coach Josh Wilber said. "I am so proud of these girls and what they accomplished this season."

Shawe's Lauren Lundergan placed 11th in the long jump at 15 feet, 2 inches and was 15th in the 3200 run in 13:02.65. Southwestern's Kylie Eccles was 11th in the 300 hurdles in 50.18.

Bloomington North scored 112 points to beat crosstown rival Bloomington South, which had 83.5, to win the regional team crown. Jeffersonville was third with 50 points, Terre Haute South was fourth with 41 and Rock Creek placed fifth with 33. A total of 31 teams scored at least one point in the meet.

second. Greensburg then got Hannah Uhl for the third out to strand Dyer at third and end the game.

"She a solid pitcher but we faced good pitching all year," Ralston said of Morrison. "It was nothing that we weren't prepared for. It just didn't work tonight for us. It's disappointing. I know we put up three runs but I fell like we could have had five, six or seven runs easily."

Dyer was 2-for-3 with an RBI for Madison while Cammack was 2-for-4 with an RBI and Stidham drove in one. Honaker was 2-for-3 with two runs scored, Patty Johnson scored a run courtesy running for Moore and Cahall had the Cubs other hit.

DeWeese was 3-for-4 with the home run and an RBI and three runs scored for Greensburg and Taylor Cooney had a pair of hits.

Morrison picked up the win, allowing three runs — all earned on seven hits and three walks while striking out 11. Moore took the loss, allowing seven runs — six earned — on 11 hits and a walk while striking out three.

The Cubs lose Dyer, Holt and Jaquira Humes to graduation but return a seven-member junior class and five sophomores.

"We've got a lot returning players — a lot of key returning players," Ralston said. "But our two senior starters, we're definitely going to miss them. Peyton and Bailey have done a lot of good things for us the last six or seven years going all the way back to junior high softball … but I got a good group coming back."

Dyer will leave Madison softball as the program's hits leader for a single season, said Ralston. He noted coaches are still tabulating her final total for the season but she passed record holder Marlena Thomas, who played in the late 1990s, last week.

"That's something she can be proud of and tell her kids and grandkids about. It's a record that had held up about a dozen years," Ralston said.

Dyer was a great role model this season and Ralston expect his juniors to bring even more of that next year as seniors.

"Our juniors who are going to be seniors are good workers and it shows up," Ralston added. "That's why we were competitive with just two senior starters. They led us in a lot of categories and they can lead us next year. But we've got to put in the work. If we can keep plugging away we're going to get there. I'm confident of that.

We've been knocking on that door and I hope we can break through this coming year with this next senior class. I know they want it," Ralston said. "We've got a lot of young talented players coming up that can blend into this class."

Madison ended the season at 11-17.

Top-seeded Carroll denied 6-4 as Henry rallies for 3 runs late

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

OWENTON, Ky. — Carroll County and Henry County baseball spent seven innings trading runs but the Wildcats got in the last word to pull out a 6-4 win in the championship game of the 31st District Baseball Tournament Tuesday at Owen County High School.

Each team took turns holding the lead and they were tied 3-3 heading into the top of the sixth when Henry scored two times to finally go on top and added a run in the top of the seventh for a 6-3 lead.

That last run for the Wildcats proved to be crucial as top-seeded Carroll County pushed across a run in the bottom of the seventh and had a runner on third when Henry pitcher Zack Woods struck out the Panthers' Blake Reynolds to end the game.

The victory clinched Henry's first district crown since 2012 and allowed the Wildcats to get a bit of revenge on Carroll, which had upset the Wildcats in last year's district final.

"I thought we played pretty well. Our Achilles' heel has been walks and errors and we had a couple of walks that hurt us but I can't fault (pitcher) Craig Beach, he pitched his guts out," Carroll coach Jimmy Ray said. "He gave us a chance to win and that's all we can ask for. We walked the nine batter twice and he scored both times, that's a tough pill to swallow. But I can't fault their effort and heart, we battled to the end. That's all you can ask for."

Carroll used three pitchers to survive Monday's extra-inning win over Owen County in the semifinals and needed Beach to turn in a strong effort if they were going to have any chance on Tuesday.

Beach answered the call and, until tiring in the sixth inning, kept the Panthers in the game.

Henry County (19-9) broke a scoreless tie in the third when that No. 9 hitter, Dannie Foree, drew a walk and eventually scored on Tyler Massey's RBI single for a 1-0 lead.

Carroll County (15-12) came right back in the bottom half of the inning, getting an infield single by Andrew Shaw and back-to-back RBIs by Dane Lacefield and Logan Rodgers to go ahead 2-1.

Henry County tied the score quickly on Will Peyton's solo home run in the fourth then went back on top with a run in the fifth when Woods singled and scored on Ryan Archer's RBI single.

The Panthers answered to tie the game 3-3 in the bottom of the fifth when David Duncan drew a walk and coasted home on Zach Clifford's double to left. However, Carroll left the bases loaded and that came back to haunt the Panthers.

Beach was close to getting out of the crucial sixth inning after retiring the first two batters with a groundout and an infield pop-up. But Foree drew another walk, stole second and scored on Woods' infield single to break the tie. After a walk, Tyler Boyer singled in Woods to chase Beach from the mound.

Reliever Shaw got the Panthers out of the inning without any more damage but Carroll missed an opportunity to cut into the now two-run lead when it wasted a leadoff double by Reynolds in the sixth.

Henry then struck again with two outs in the seventh when Peyton doubled and scored on Foree's single to push the lead to 6-3.

Four of the six runs Henry scored in the game — including the final four — came with two outs, a microcosm of Carroll's inability to make the plays it needed to pull out the win.

"We can't ever seem to find the third out. We lose focus and don't maintain our focus enough to get the third out," Ray said. "They got a lot of two-out hits and we had a chance for a big inning (in the fifth) but couldn't get the big hit."

Carroll had a final chance in the seventh. Luke Staley reached on an error, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Kennedy Daigle's groundout. Jacob Polley, who was hit by a pitch just after Staley reached, made his way to third and was still there when the final out was recorded.

Beach was the hard-luck loser after allowing five earned runs on nine hits in five and two-thirds innings with six strikeouts and five walks. Shaw struck out three and walked one while allowing one run and two hits in an inning and a third.

Woods got the win in relief for Henry after giving up an unearned run on three hits with two strikeouts and a walk. Archer worked the first four-plus innings for the Wildcats and allowed three runs on five hits with three strikeouts and three walks.

Clifford went 3-for-4 with a double and an RBI and was named to the all-tournament team. Reynolds was 2-for-4 with a double and was also named to the all-tournament team, along with Beach.

Boyer had two hits and an RBI, Woods was 2-for-5 with two runs and an RBI and Tyler Massey had a hit and RBI as all three players, along with Archer, were named to the all-tournament team for Henry County.

Ethan Baker and Ashton Gullion from Gallatin County, Blake Fitzgerald and Eli Rice from Owen County, and Trent Smith from Eminence rounded out the all-tournament team.

Both Carroll and Henry advance to the Eighth Region Tournament on Saturday, which will be played at Simon Kenton High School. Pairings for that tournament were to be announced Wednesday evening.

Carroll softball rolls over Warriors to title game

Carroll County softball made short work of Eminence, rolling to a 9-0 win in the semifinals of the 31st District Tournament Tuesday at Owen County High School.

The Panthers, the tournament's No. 2 seed, started the game in strong when Allie Beach doubled, Mallory Besselman followed with an RBI double and Andrea Searcy blasted a two-run home run for a 3-0 lead after one inning.

Carroll added four more runs in the second on a triple by Kaitlynn Gaddis, an RBI double by Jordan Ray, a run-scoring single by Bailey Mefford, another double from Beach and a two-run single by Searcy.

The Panthers then closed out the scoring with two more runs in the sixth when Mefford hit an RBI triple and Beach drove her in with a single for the final margin.

The nine runs were more than enough for Carroll's Searcy, who allowed only three hits while tossing the shutout with six strikeouts and a walk.

The win improves Carroll's record to 20-5 on the season and sends them into the championship game where they will face top-seeded Henry County, a 2-0 winner over Owen County in the other semifinal. Henry (23-4) defeated Carroll 4-1 back on May 7.

Lady Raiders bow out 15-0 to Oldham Co.

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Trimble County's 2019 softball season came to an end with a 15-0 loss to Oldham County in the semifinals of the 29th District Tournament at North Oldham on Monday.

The Lady Raiders managed just one hit — a single by Kaylee Payton — as the Colonels scored in every inning to end the game early.

McKenna Ritchie started and took the loss for Trimble after allowing eight runs — six earned — on four hits with two walks. Shelby Wilcoxson gave up four earned runs on three hits in one inning of relief and Abby Ponder allowed three runs — two earned — on two hits without getting an out.

Oldham County will face the winner of Tuesday's matchup between North Oldham and South Oldham in the championship game on Wednesday. Trimble ends the season with a 15-11 record.

Trimble baseball ends season with 10-0 loss

South Oldham's Dustin Patton struck out 14 and twirled a two-hit shutout to lift the Dragons to a 10-0 win over Trimble County baseball in the 29th District tournament semifinals Monday at Oldham County.

The Raiders were limited to just a pair of singles by Seth Brewer and Matt Saylor. South Oldham scored three runs in the third, two in the fifth and five in the sixth to end the game early.

Brewer started and took the loss for Trimble after allowing three unearned runs on two hits in two innings, Saylor gave up two runs — one earned — in two innings with two strikeouts and three walks and Ryan Goody gave up five runs — four earned — without getting an out.

South Oldham will now take on North Oldham, a 5-1 winner over Oldham County in Monday's other semifinal, in the championship game on Wednesday. Trimble County ends the season with a 2-19 record.

through three innings and got four more in the fourth. But the Toppers also got an RBI double from Jaylin Lee and scored four times to cut the lead to 15-8.

The Hilltoppers committed an error to open the Borden fifth, but it proved to be their last mistake of the game and Shawe held the Braves scoreless for the first time. Aimee Corbin-Sanchez then came off the bench and laced a two-run single in the bottom of the fifth to pull Shawe to within 15-10.

"It was a 3-0 pitch and I told her to take it and she hammered it," Torrance said with a smile. "I turned to the Borden coach and said, 'I guess that shows what I know.'"

Borden scored a run in the top of the sixth on a McKenzii Rothbauer double to push ahead 16-10 and the Hilltoppers went into the bottom half just hoping to chip away more at the lead. However, they were able to do much more.

Snodgrass opened the sixth by drawing a walk, Presley Coots then singled and Lee was hit by a pitch to load the bases. After Green drew a walk — Hoffman's 18th — Borden coach Kaitlynn Gardner decided to give her sophomore pitcher a break and that's when the game got away from the Braves.

Borden's relievers, first Grace Nale and then Caitlyn Cook, faced a combined 11 batters and got just one out while walking seven, hitting two and giving up a two-run single to Green as Shawe surged ahead 21-16. Hoffman came back into the game and promptly gave up a two-run single to Corbin-Sanchez and walked two more batters to force in another run as Shawe pushed ahead 24-16.

Borden got a leadoff triple by Caitlyn Cook in the top of the seventh but Snodgrass sat down the next three batters to end the game, getting a terrific running catch by Jessie Stuart in centerfield in the process.

Snodgrass ended up going to distance for the Hilltoppers and picked up the much-deserved win. Despite allowing 16 runs in seven innings, only four of the runs scored against her were earned thanks to the early defensive woes. She also struck out eight batters while not walking any, a far cry from her counterparts.

"Kristen pitched a really good game. I could see her getting frustrated at times, as anybody would, but she didn't allow it to affect her," Torrance said. "She was a leader and did what she needed to do."

Corbin-Sanchez didn't start the game but she ended up being the hitting hero, going 2-for-2 with five RBIs and three runs scored for the Hilltoppers. Lee was 2-for-5 with a double, an RBI and three runs scored.

Hits were hard to come by for the Toppers but everybody scored at least a run. Snodgrass had a hit with three runs scored and four RBIs, Coots had a hit, two RBIs and three runs, Bekah Hillenburg had a single, an RBI and scored three runs, Green had a hit, three RBIs and scored twice, Grace McAllister went 0-for-3 but had three RBIs and scored a run, Stuart was 0-for-1 with two runs and two RBIs, Shannen Itell was 0-for-3 with two runs and an RBI and Johanna Leatherman and Caitie Duerstock each scored a run.

Rothbauer ended up 4-for-5 with two doubles and an RBI to lead Borden while Kaylie Margallanes was 3-for-5 with a triple, three runs scored and three RBIs.

Hoffman allowed 15 runs — 10 earned — on seven hits in five and two-thirds innings with 20 walks and two hit batters in her two stints in the circle. Nale was tagged with the loss after allowing three earned runs, walking one and hitting two without getting an out. Cook gave up six earned runs on one hit with six walks in a third of an inning.

"It's just nice after 16 losses to start the season to win two in a row," Torrance said. "As far as going for a win at the end of the season to a win in the sectional, that's pretty sweet."

Shawe followed the high of Monday's big win with the low of a big loss on Tuesday, 26-0 to host Lanesville in the semifinals.

The Hilltoppers managed only three hits in the game — singles by McAllister, Snodgrass and Leatherman — and were powerless to stop the Eagles.

"Lanesville is a very good team and we had no answer for them on offense or defense," Torrance said.

Lanesville was to face New Washington, a 19-0 winner over Christian Academy of Indiana in the other semifinal, in tonight's championship.

Shawe (2-17) graduates three seniors, Green, Itell and Snodgrass.

Southwestern shuts down Eagles 7-0 in sectional semis

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier Sports Editor
mcampbell@madisoncourier.com

Southwestern softball's Lakyn Wilson fanned 11 Eagles while twirling a four-hit shutout as the Rebels won their IHSAA Sectional 45 opener 6-0 over Austin in Tuesday's semifinals in Vevay.

Although she never really dominated, the senior right-hander Wilson was crafty enough to navigate through the Austin lineup, using timely strikeouts to douse every uprising before the Eagles could inflict any real damage.

Wilson allowed a single and a walk in the first inning but both came with two outs and she then used a strikeout to strand both. Mykenzi Wells doubled with one out in the second inning and went to third on a groundout but she was stuck there when Wilson struck out Emma Campbell for out number three.

A two-out double by Erika Lee, a single by Wells and a walk by Bailie Baxter loaded the bases for Austin in the fourth but Wilson worked out of the jam with yet another strikeout. Wilson hit a batter in the fifth to go with three strikeouts and then retired the side in order in both the sixth and seventh innings.

"She's been pitching well all year long, especially toward the end of the year. I don't really focus on how many strikeouts a pitcher has during the game but when I look back she got eight, 10, 12 or whatever. It's amazing how well she's done this year without much notice," Rebels coach Duane Ralston said. "You don't realize you're getting shut down until you look back and she's pitched a shutout.

"She's a sneaky little pitcher. She's got several movement pitches that we mixed in a lot tonight," he added. "Honestly, they weren't getting us the strikes so we kind of had to adjust a lot and throw them in places we normally wouldn't throw them to try to get them to fall into the zone."

While Wilson was keeping the Eagle hitters offbalance, Southwestern's defense was sweeping up everything else with error-free play. The combination proved more than Austin's hitter could answer.

"Our defense has played well the last week and a half — we've just been out-hit in some games," Ralston said as Southwestern improved to 11-11 on the season. "If we'd have had this defense all year long our record would be better than what it's showed. We've had one inning in a lot of games that just fell apart for us."

Southwestern scored its six runs on only seven hits. Eagles pitcher Summer Eskridge went the distance and struck out nine but she also walked five and hit a batter while Austin also made the only error of the game.

"Honestly, I think everybody was thinking we were going to walk away with this one — and I haven't seen them at all — but they've got a pretty good little pitcher and we struggled with her for a little while," Ralston said of Eskridge, a freshman. "We were really a sucker for the high ball tonight. But I thought we did well, we were working hard and we got a few hits at the right time."

The Rebels seven hits included doubles by Morgan Mahoney, Abby Ralston and Wilson. Kailey Burns and Wilson were both 2-for-3, Mahoney led the Rebels with two RBIs and Ralston and courtesy runner Bella Marcum scored a pair of runs each.

Coach Ralston said now that the Rebels have navigated their sectional opener against a team everybody picked them to beat easily, he hopes the team can relax and take care of business in tonight's championship game against host Switzerland County.

"Sometimes the hardest wins are the ones you're supposed to win — especially in a sectional first game," Ralston said. "So we got that out of the way and now we can relax and just play against whoever we meet in the final. We know both of these teams well. We struggled against both of them this year but I think we're playing better now than we were earlier."

in the bottom of the seventh but Milan wriggled free when Oeffinger popped up to third base for the second out and Hankins struck out to end the seventh and force more innings.

Sparks retired the meat of the Milan order in the eighth — Cline and Widner on ground outs to shortstop and Megan Brown on Sparks' 13th strikeout — and worked out of a two-out jam in the top of the ninth with her 14th strikeout and a batter interference call on a pop up in front of the plate.

The freshman sensation Sparks had been bringing heat all night against the Indians, scattering four runs on six hits while striking out 14, walking one (in the first inning) and hitting two, but by the end she was looked more gassed than throwing gas and merely hanging on.

"I don't know how many (pitches) she threw. She obviously threw more in the last half than in the first half," Cook said of her young ace. "After the ninth I just asked her if she could pitch another inning if I needed her to and she said 'I don't know coach.'

"She doesn't show a lot of emotion but when she means business, she means business," Cook added. "She's one that you can give her a job and she's going to get it done."

And now the job is two-thirds of the way done. After shutting out South Ripley on a 10-0 one-hitter on Monday and Milan 5-4 in nine innings Tuesday, the Pacers will get a day off before hosting Southwestern in the sectional championship game tonight.

Cook said she's glad her team has a day off in between after Tuesday's marathon because there's a lot at stake in Thursday's championship. It's a chance for the Pacers (13-6) to win their first sectional since 2013 but perhaps even more.

"I think we've got our money cut out for us," Cook said. "But I think for us we've got past the hard part — the hard part for us is right now — and from here on out we're going to celebrate no matter what. This win is big for us."

Cook said whichever team emerges from Sectional 45 could be in a position to make a serious tourney run.

"We've looked at the semistate and we've looked at regionals — we've looked at the competition and the records — and this could be our toughest competition right here in this sectional," she said.

On Monday, the Pacers used the top of their order to near perfection in a 10-0 win over South Ripley.

The Pacers scored a run in the first inning when Jessie Duvall singled and came in on an error and followed with three runs in the bottom of the third that was started by back-to-back triples by Jessie Duvall and Maddie Duvall and was followed by an error and two wild pitches.

Switzerland County followed with six runs in the bottom of the fifth inning on four South Ripley errors to end the game on the 10-run rule.

That was more than enough runs as Sparks dazzled in the circle, twirling a one-hit shutout with six strikeouts and no walks. The win was her third against South Ripley this season.

Mady Tompkins was dealt the complete game loss for South Ripley. Ellie Waldron had the lone hit at the plate for the Raiders.

JOLENE

Jolene is a black and tan Coonhound. She is 3 to 5 years old and weighs 51 pounds. Jolene recently went on an overnight hunting run with a shelter staff member who used to be an avid Coon hunter and still runs her dogs as hobby only. She discovered that Jolene does very well and showed much drive, even remembering the difference between cat scent and raccoon, which is very similar. Jolene may be best not living around cats if you plan to hunt with her. She was set free on a fenced 40 acres and treed three raccoons and one mystery animal through the night. Jolene still has the will and drive to hunt but may need more scent training to remember everything. For more information about hunting, ask shelter staff. Jolene doesn't like to be fenced in a kennel and prefers to be outside. She will be best in a home without other pets and is currently not potty trained and would be best placed in an outdoor or hunting home.

PETS OF THE WEEK

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter currently has 11 dogs or puppies, and 28 cats or kittens available. Pictures of additional pets waiting for adoption can be viewed at www.sisaveapet.com.

Normal shelter hours are Monday, Thursday and Friday from noon to 5 p.m., Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday from noon to 4 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 3 p.m. It is closed Tuesday. The shelter number is (812) 273-1788 and the email is jcas39@seidata.com.

All cats and kittens are $45 off unless they are already spay or neutered. Discount is courtesy of the Animal Shelter and the Jefferson County Humane Society.

Volunteers are always welcome at the shelter. Individuals must be at least 16 years old to volunteer. Volunteers can help with everyday cleaning, answering phones, and exercising the pets. Contact the shelter for details.

The shelter is a registered organization with the Kroger Community Rewards program. To support the shelter, register a Kroger card at www.krogercommunityrewards.com and enter FL919.

Support the shelter while walking your dog. Use the "Walk for a Dog" or "WoofTrax" app available through the App Store or Google Play. For each mile walked, a donation is made to the shelter.

A list of needed items can be found on the shelter website. Donations can be mailed to 2727 Hannah Drive, Madison, IN 47250 or dropped off during shelter hours. The shelter also accepts aluminum and steel cans, which are recycled and the proceeds put toward the medical fund. Recent donations have helped get treatment for a beagle with a skin infection and a cat with wounds. The shelter asks that aluminum and steel donations be separated. Steel cans should also be rinsed before they are dropped off. Cans can be dropped off at anytime in a bin located on the east side of the shelter.

Those with missing pets can stop by the shelter, call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner's name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption.

Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours.

For animal control issues in Madison, call (812) 265-3347. For animal control issues in Hanover and Jefferson County, call (812) 265-2648.

GENIE

Genie is a five-pound female, 1 to 3 years old. Genie was a trapped cat who came to the shelter a total mess and very matted. She has come a long way and currently has an odd haircut from getting her mats out. Genie is a sweet cat who loves to be held and carried. Her coat is still growing out and daily combing and grooming visits once a month would be ideal to help maintain her fur in a healthy, pain-free way. Genie is spayed and up-to-date on her rabies vaccination. She is only $45 to adopt.

Madison's Anne Maguire awarded Saint Catherine Medal

Courier staff report

Saint Mary's College Interim President Nancy Nekvasil awarded the Saint Catherine Medal to Anne Maguire of Madison at Honors Convocation, a ceremony honoring graduation seniors, on Sunday, May 5.

This award goes to a sophomore or junior who exemplifies excellence in leadership, scholarship, faith and service — the values of Kappa Gamma Pi, the national Catholic college graduate honor society that sponsors this award. This year, Maguire, a junior, was honored with the award. She is the 53rd student to receive this honor in the college's 175-year history. Previous recipients include alumnae leaders who have gone on to become CEOs, lawyers, principals and other professionals.

Students, faculty and staff nominate candidates for the Saint Catherine Medal and the Academic Affairs Council makes the final selection, which is kept secret until the Honors Convocation. Nekvasil said Maguire greatly deserved to receive the medal.

"She has demonstrated leadership and service grounded deeply in her Catholic faith," Nekvasil said. "It is an honor to confer this award on such a giving, humble, caring young woman."

During her time at the college, Maguire founded Project SHE (Spreading Hope through Education) to teach leadership skills to middle school children across South Bend. She also became a leader in the Catholic Relief Services Student Ambassadors program through Campus Ministry and tutored children both in South Bend and while she studied abroad in Spain.

"It is a great honor to be recognized by the Saint Mary's community with this medal," Maguire said. "I am deeply grateful that the college has supported me in my pursuit of justice and social change throughout my three years in college."

Saint Mary's College is a Catholic liberal arts institution in Notre Dame, Indiana, that is recognized as a pioneer in the education of women. The college offers more than 50 academic programs and also offers co-educational master's degrees in data science, speech language pathology, autism studies and a Doctor of Nursing Practice.

Germany hands Israel thousands of Kafka confidant's papers

By DAVID RISING

BERLIN (AP) — German authorities on Tuesday handed over to Israel some 5,000 documents kept by a confidant of Franz Kafka, a trove whose plight could have been plucked from one of the author's surreal stories.

The papers returned include a postcard from Kafka from 1910 and personal documents kept by Max Brod, which experts say provide a window into Europe's literary and cultural scene in the early 20th century.

They are among some 40,000 documents, including manuscripts, correspondence, notebooks and other writings that once belonged to Brod, which are being brought together again in Israel's National Library. They had ended up in bank vaults in Switzerland and Tel Aviv, a Tel Aviv apartment and in a storage facility in Wiesbaden, Germany, where police found them tucked among forged Russian avant-garde artworks.

"I think he (Kafka) would really be amused," said National Library archivist Stefan Litt, who helped identify the papers recovered in Germany. "He couldn't invent by himself a better plot."

The documents recovered in Wiesbaden have little to do with Kafka himself, but make the Brod collection complete and shine a light on Brod and his circle, which included Kafka and other writers, Litt said.

"This is an important chapter in Max Brod's estate," Litt said. "It's always good for researchers to have as complete a picture as possible."

After the formal handover of the documents from Germany's Federal Criminal Police at the Israeli ambassador's residence in Berlin, National Library chairman David Blumberg pledged to make the whole collection available to everybody.

"Everything will be published, everything will be digitized, so we can share it with the world," he said.

Kafka, a Bohemian Jew from Prague who lived for a while in Berlin, was close friends with Brod, himself an accomplished writer. Shortly before his untimely death at 40 of tuberculosis in 1924, Kafka bequeathed his writings to Brod, reportedly telling him to burn them all unread.

Instead, Brod published much of the collection, including the novels "The Trial," The Castle," and "Amerika," helping to posthumously establish Kafka as one of the great authors of the 20th century. He also brought "Kafkaesque" into the English language to describe bizarre, illogical or nightmarish situations like the ones Kafka wrote about.

After the Nazis occupied the Sudetenland region of Czechoslovakia in 1938, Brod fled to escape persecution with the entire collection to what was then British-ruled Palestine. When Brod died, he left his personal secretary Esther Hoffe in charge of his literary estate and instructed her to transfer the Kafka papers to an academic institution.

Instead, she kept the documents for the next four decades and sold some, like the original manuscript of Kafka's "The Trial," which fetched $1.8 million at auction in 1988. She kept some items in a bank vault in Tel Aviv, some in Switzerland, and others at her apartment in Tel Aviv.

When she died in 2008, the collection went to her two daughters, who fought to keep it but eventually lost a battle in Israel's Supreme Court in 2016. The court sided with the country's National Library, whose lawyers had argued the Kafka papers were "cultural assets" that belonged to the Jewish people.

Both daughters have now died, and the documents stored in Israel have already been transferred to the National Library's care. The documents held in Switzerland should be on their way soon after the National Library won a court case in Zurich last month.

But that left the documents in Germany, which had been stolen from Hoffe's apartment about a decade ago.

They ended up with an Israeli dealer, who tried in 2013 to sell them to the German Literature Archive in Marbach — the same institution that bought "The Trial" manuscript in 1988. The German archive instead reported the offer to Israel's National Library, which then got authorities involved, Litt said.

The documents resurfaced at the Wiesbaden storage facility used by an international forgery ring that produced and sold forged paintings and was taken down by German authorities that same year, Litt said. Since then, they have been stored by German authorities as Litt and others sought to confirm their provenance.

Those being returned include correspondence between Brod and his wife, and even some of his notebooks from high school, Litt said.

"There's no doubt these materials were part of his papers," he said.

The manuscript of "The Trial," however, was properly purchased by the German Literature Archive in the 1988 Sotheby's auction, and the National Library has no claim on it, he said.

Weber and wife by deed dated January 22, 1949, and recorded in Deed Record 115, page 151, in the Recorder's Office of Jefferson County, Indiana. And more particularly described as follows: A part of Section 21, Township 5 North, Range 11 East, Shelby Township, Jefferson County, Indiana described as follows: Commencing at a stone found at the Northeast Corner of the Northeast Quarter of Section 21, T5N, R11 E; thence South 00 degrees 53'05" West, in the part along State road 62, 1849.96 feet to a mag nail set; THE POINT OF BEGINNING; thence continuing South 00 degrees 53'05" West, along State Road 62, 143.00 feet to a mag nail set; thence North 87 degrees 17'03" West, 283.58 feet to a 5/8 inch rebar set; thence North 01 degrees 30'28"East 143.00 feet to a half inch rebar found; thence South 87 degrees 16'33" East 282.02 feet to the POINT OF BEGINNING. This tract contains 0.928 acres subject to the right-of-way of State Road 62 and all easements of record. BRIDGE

PLAY OUT OF ORDER WITH ONLY TWO CARDS

Adelle Davis, who was one of the world's first well-known nutritionists, advised, "Eat breakfast like a king, lunch like a prince and dinner like a pauper."

In bridge, though, kings might be brought to bear early, middle or late in the meal ... I mean, deal. When should the highest-ranking king be played in today's layout? South is in four hearts, and West leads the spade three.

Over one no-trump, almost all pairs use transfers into the major suits at the two-level, and at the three-level opposite two no-trump. But an excellent addition is a Texas transfer at the four-level. Then, if the responder uses Texas, he has at least six trumps and is planning either to stop in game or to push toward a slam. Instead, to transfer at the two-level (or three-level over two no-trump), then to bid four of the major is a slam-try with at least a six-card suit.

In this deal, North responds four diamonds, then passes when partner perforce rebids four hearts.

When playing third hand high on defense (winning the trick if fourth hand does not beat your card), you play the bottom of your equivalent high cards. With A-K-x, you win with the king. So, to win with the ace, then to cash the king shows a doubleton. At trick two, West must send a suit-preference signal to tell East where his entry lies -- here, playing the spade 10 at trick two. Then, when East shifts to the diamond eight (top of nothing) at trick three, West can win and give his partner a spade ruff to defeat the contract.

Notes from different opinions on a college admissions scandal

Annie Lane

Dear Readers: Many of you have strong opinions about the college admissions scandal, and because there were so many thoughtful replies, I am devoting a few columns to reprinting some of the feedback to my proposed solution of fining the parents to pay for scholarships:

Dear Annie: Loved your answer to "Friends in Disagreement." But there was one point that wasn't mentioned by you or "Friends" that I think is very important and not being taught enough. As parents, one of our biggest jobs is to teach our children that they need to work for, and earn, what they want. Give them that sense of pride, accomplishment and confidence. The message these parents sent to their kids was, "We know you can't make it on your own, so we'll buy it for you." — Earn What You Get

Dear Annie: Amen, Sister! I had to write to you as this is one of the first letters that I have read of yours, and there have been hundreds, that I totally agree with. You were spot on. Those parents need to pay extremely huge fines and receive suspended sentences with probation. Also, money to the universities, as you suggested, should be devoted exclusively for those less fortunate. What a great response. — Just Another Christian

Dear Annie: You missed the mark. While I completely agree with your statement that the parents in the scandal should pay a hefty fine, perhaps in scholarship funds to the universities, paying said fines is no punishment for these very wealthy individuals and again sends the message that they can buy their way out of a felony. They need to serve jail time. — Serious About Penalties

Dear Annie: The parents who bribed and cheated to get their kids admitted to colleges seemed to forget an important point: How will those students ever succeed in college when they weren't qualified to be admitted? I agree with the writer who believes these parents did a great disservice to their kids. They did not "do what any loving parent would do." Loving parents do not try to set the worst example for their children. And forgiving these parents may be the Christian way, but remember: This wasn't a mistake; these parents knew that what they were doing was wrong but hoped it wouldn't be discovered. — Know the Difference.

Dear Annie: I was surprised at your suggested punishment for the celebrities who bought their way into elite universities for their kids. You suggested a fine double the amount of the bribes. This amounts to bribing the judicial system the same way they bribed the educational system. If anything, it would reinforce the parents' and kids' belief that cheating the system is the way to go. Jail time is the only way to get their attention and to dissuade others from doing the same thing. — Correcting the Record

Dear Annie: I agreed with your response to "Friends in Disagreement," but I would like to add a couple of comments. First of all, bribing a college official to get your kid admitted is not a natural thing loving parents would do. Loving parents try to teach their kids to be honest and responsible. Bribing a college official demonstrates neither of those traits. And your child will learn a valuable lesson about the consequences of choices when his or her poor high school grades get a denial from an Ivy League school. Your child still can attend a state university. Loving and responsible parents allow their children to learn from the consequences of their choices.

Secondly, while I think your idea of the parents paying hefty fines for their criminal behavior is excellent, I still think a jail sentence should be imposed. These appear to be people who have spent their lives buying their way out of consequences. — Learning Their Lesson
